

Finance and Accounting 2020 Annual Symposium

Call for Papers

Theme: Data Analytics in the Digital Age

Dates: 18-19 June 2020

School of Finance and Accounting, Westminster Business School, University of Westminster, London, UK

Keynote Speaker: Professor Alex Preda (King's College, London)

Venue: School of finance and Accounting, Westminster Business School, University of Westminster, 35 Marylebone Road, NW1 5LS.

Registration: Register Here

Overview:

The Finance and Accounting 2020 Annual Symposium is a two-day meeting, organized by the School of Finance and Accounting, Westminster Business School, London, UK. It examines a wide range of finance and accounting topics, ranging from asset pricing, behavioural finance, corporate finance, corporate social responsibility, corporate governance, financial econometrics, forecasting, fund management, pensions, market sentiment, financial reporting, accounting standards, taxation to FinTech, bigdata, cryptocurrency and blockchain technology.

The forthcoming meeting would focus on how huge amounts of data and its transformation has an impact across all aspects of decision making for individuals, financial institutions, fund managers, governments, businesses and policy makers. Submissions in all areas of finance and accounting are encouraged. Submissions exploring how data analytics affect investors' expectations and decision-making will be particularly welcome.

Submission Deadline:

We invite you to submit extended abstracts, papers-in-progress or full papers* by the deadline of 31 January 2020 by emailing these to SFASymposium@westminster.ac.uk

* Extended abstracts, papers-in-progress or full papers will be considered for the conference program with the understanding that they will be finished by the time of the conference.

For any other questions or queries, please email SFASymposium@westminster.ac.uk

The organizers will come back with a decision within four weeks after this deadline.