About the Cyprus University of

Cyprus
University of Technology

Technology

Cyprus University of Technology (CUT), established in 2008, is one of the two state universities in Cyprus. The university is located in the heart of the old city of Limassol. Restored ancient buildings of cultural importance are now home of the university facilities and are scattered around the streets of the vibrant old city across the road from the seafront promenade. Over its short lifespan the university has grown both in size and in international recognition for excellence in education, research and knowledge transfer. The university engages in substantial network of international collaboration through its participation in 67 international organizations and bilateral cooperation with 78 universities.
